

COUNCIL OF NEIGHBORHOOD ASSOCIATIONS

Fall 2001

Welcome to Bloomington and its neighborhoods. Whether you are an Indiana University student choosing to live within our community rather than on the campus, a brand new resident of Bloomington, or a new resident to the neighborhood that you now call home, the Council of Neighborhood Associations (CONA) is happy that you made the choice and want it to be as rewarding as you hoped it would be.

The wonderful thing about neighborhoods is that we have neighbors!! Get to know your neighbors and establish a relationship that will allow you to help one another out when the need is there.

Find out those mundane but important facts about trash collection, recycling, lawn mowing, and snow removal .

Find out if there is a neighborhood association. Inside this booklet, you will find many of our neighborhoods listed with contact names and numbers. Give them a call. Students, we welcome you to contact your neighborhood group and become a part of the neighborhood community of which you are a part.

Look through this booklet and see what it contains. You will find some useful information about the city and county governments. The information will help you to contact the person or office you may need to speak with.

Bloomington has many cars and parking is an issue that calls for a plan. Make sure you know about the residential parking areas around the campus but also know about the downtown parking plan. Information about both are in this booklet. You will find that downtown parking is free on the weekends!!

CONA is always a resource for information relating to neighborhoods. Email address is cona@bloomington.in.us and the phone number is 333-6377. Our website is conaonline.org.

Most importantly, enjoy your new neighborhood and the entire community. Get to know what both have to offer.
